Corporation has submitted the proposal, which involves both sides of William Street between Palmer and Riley Streets.

The site extends north into Woolloomooloo where it is bounded by Palmer, Crown, Riley and Broughton Streets and Robinson Lane.

Precise details of the development are still highly confidential — but it is known to include four multi-storey buildings with generous landscaped space at ground level for free pedestrian movement.

One of the four buildings will be a multi-suite motel.

Another will be an international-standard hotel.

The two other buildings will house shops and offices.

$40m. project

Plans for a $40 million development involving four multi-storey buildings on a large site at Woolloomooloo have been submitted to Sydney City Council for approval.
