12th Congress

Brisbane 21st-25th August 1972

12th CONGRESS of the ROYAL AUSTRALIAN PLANNING INSTITUTE to be held at the SCHONELL THEATRE, UNIVERSITY OF QUEENSLAND, BRISBANE, Monday, AUGUST 21st to Friday, AUGUST 25th, 1972.

All correspondence, including REGISTRATIONS, address to THE HON. SECRETARY, R.A.P.I. 12th CONGRESS COMMITTEE, P.O. Box 233, North Quay, Brisbane, 4000.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

I see the theme of this Congress as symptomatic of vital changes that are occurring in attitudes to planning in this country. Awareness of the need to control and direct development has steadily increased in the past few years and there is a new appreciation that all levels of Government have to be involved. The greater sensitivity of decision-makers to the ground swell of public opinion on the eve of a general election may well have played its part but, nevertheless, one feels that we have at last passed the stage when debate centres around "whether and when" and have moved to the point where the issues are more closely related to "how, where and by whom?" This is not only particularly true as far as the devising of a policy for new cities in Australia is concerned — cities that will ease the pressure on our larger metropolitan centres by acting as counter magnets — but is also apparent in the moves that are occurring in all agencies responsible for development. Regional strategies are being devised, local government is seeking a more appropriate and meaningful role and Federal Government is being drawn into areas that have traditionally been state responsibilities. There is also increasing demand for administrative machinery that will permit a great degree of public participation. In the light of these heartening changes the professional planner is reassessing the part he has to play, and the Institute, through its Federal Council and Divisional Committees, has sought to improve its organisation and relationships with other professional bodies so that its voice may be more clearly heard and heeded.

I believe that the theme of the Congress is wholly in keeping with current trends and that the proceedings will be a notable contribution to the development of the art and science of regional and town planning.

F. W. LEDGAR.
