PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE "Challenge to Change — 1973"

As a consequence of the 1972 Federal elections, a range of organisational changes, decisions, studies and policy proposals have created unprecedented interest in urban and regional affairs.

The State of New South Wales is a focal point for policy in that it contains proposed inland growth areas or "centres" at Bathurst-Orange and Albury-Wodonga, as well as sub-metropolitan centres in the Sydney Region near Campbelltown and Gosford-Wyong.

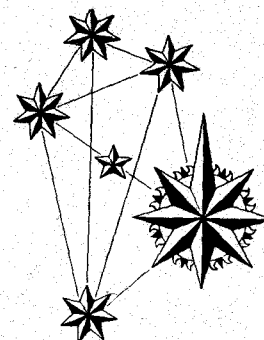

The public sector is astir with inter-action amongst such bodies as the Department of Urban and Regional Development, the Cities Commission, the National Capital Development Commission, the State Planning Authority of New South Wales, the Department of Decentralisation and Development, Regional Advisory Councils, Consultative Committees and Local Government generally. Independent planning consultant firms are also participating to a considerable degree in the work of the new national Authorities.

The private sector's response is to initiate supporting investment and development activity as well as to enquire about likely programmes of public investment in major social and physical services which are essential for the healthy growth of urban areas.

This is the background for the Division's 1973 Weekend School which will seek to identify how policies will lead to action in urban and regional development. A representative range of speakers has been invited to discuss the various policy and operational changes with you.

There will be, quite naturally, time for relaxation in the informal setting of Terrigal and with the excellent facilities available at the Hotel Florida.

George Clarke, President.
R.A.P.I. (N.S.W. Division).
