

John Olsen with his picture painted in situ to cover the wall of a Vaucluse house 36 years ago, the Sydney Harbour themed Five Bells is now installed in its new home, the Art Gallery of NSW. Five Bells was officially presented to the gallery last night by the Art Gallery Society, which paid $255,000 for the work at auction on August 3. "We had a reasonable representation of Olsen's work, but not quite as good as most people think," the gallery's director, Mr Edmund Capon, said yesterday. "Now, with Five Bells joining Entrance to the Seaport of Desire in the collection, we have two of his best works."

Photograph by STEVEN SIEWERT